Hospice care is free

How we make your donation count

What we do

Every year St Richard's provides free, expert care and support to 1,500 adults living with life-limiting illnesses, plus 1,400 family members, loved ones and carers.

We aim to improve patients' quality of life and wellbeing, helping them live as fully as they can to the end of their lives, however long that may be. Hospice care is free for everyone, and is provided for however long it's needed, which could be days, weeks or months

A hospice is not just a building – it is a way of caring for people. St Richard's provides care in a number of different places including people's own homes, in day services, hospice beds and even by telephone if that is preferred.

How we are funded

- Hospice care is made possible thanks to the generosity of our donors and supporters who fund 77% of our income
- The remainder is from the NHS. Our funding from the Government has not increased in the last six years, meaning a drop in real terms of their contribution.

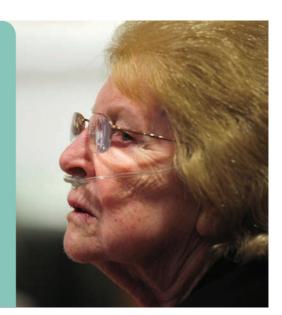

At St Richard's we understand that everyone who makes a donation to help us care wants to know that their contribution has made a real difference to patients and their loved ones. It is important to us that we are open about how we spend money and that our supporters are reassured that we are making the very best use of the funds available to us.

This factsheet gives information about the different services St Richard's offers, how these services support patients and their families, and how much each service costs.

It costs £15,841 to fund all our hospice services for one day
